Volume VI

ANTI-INFECTIVES

Antibiotic prophylaxis in patients undergoing burn wound excision, 422

Ascorbic acid on murine burns, the beneficial effects of, 50

Para-chloro-meta-xylenol (PCMX): A new, potential topical antimicrobial agent, 58

Silver penetration into burn eschar by atomic absorption, determination of, 55

ANTIMICROBIALS

Alternaria burn wound sepsis: A case report, 501

Pseudomonas aeruginosa isolates with varying serotype and multiple antibiogram patterns from individual burn patients, 482

Quantitative evaluation and laboratory studies of topical antibiotic therapy in burns, 39

A rapid section technique for burn wound biopsy, 433

BIOLOGIC DRESSINGS

Cryopreservation of skin: An assessment of current clinical applicability, 469

Synthetic burn dressings: Round table discussion, 66

DEBRIDEMENT

Interrupted debridement, 398

DEVICES IN BURN CARE

Evidence that use of a silicone gel sheet increases range of motion over burn wound contractures, 503

The papoose: Device for positioning the burned child's axilla, 62

Planimetry for calculating the surface area of a burn wound, the use of, 47

Rapid, simple, and inexpensive method to rule out bacterial invasion of fat subjacent to full-thickness burn eschar, 402

Stable net slings for upper extremity elevation, 375

EDUCATION

Need for a burn nursing core curriculum, 112

A successful burn prevention program in elementary schools, 509

EMERGENCY CARE

The role of the helicopter in management of the burned patient, 233

EPIDEMIOLOGY

Major burns resulting from scalds: The California burn registry experience, 350

Ten-year profile of 1,271 burn patients, 341

Thermal injury in the elderly: Incidence and etiology, 487

ETIOLOGIC AGENTS

The care of burns from methyl bromide (case report), 119

Thermal injury in the elderly: Incidence and etiology, 487

IMMUNOLOGY

The autodestructive consequences of thermal injury, 251

Circulating mediators in thermal injuries: Isolation and characterization of a burn injury-induced immunosuppressive serum component, 147

The delayed hypersensitivity skin test response, granulocyte function and sepsis in surgical patients, 157

The endocrine response after burns: Its possible correlations with the immunology of burns, 281

Fibronectin: Possible role in host defense processes after injury, 152

Granulocyte function: Current knowledge and methods of assessment, 261

Hormonal changes following burns: An overview with consideration of the pineal gland, 275

Immunoenhancement in the thermally injured guinea pig, 358

Immunologic and hematologic perturbations in models of combined injury, 179

The immunology of injury, 128, 250

Kinetics of immune depression in burned rats: The sixth day phenomenon, 256

Modulation of suppressor cell activity and improved resistance to infection in the burned mouse, 270

Nutritional effects on the immune response in surgical patients, 295

Nutritional regulation of the immune responses: Basic considerations and practical applications, 174

A response to trauma and infection: Metabolic changes and immunologic consequences, 188

Stress and the human immune response: A critical review, 167

METABOLISM
Do changes in burn size affect measured energy expenditures?, 419
The endocrine response after burns: Its possible correlations with the immunology of burns, 281
Glucose metabolism in burn injury, 408
Hormonal changes following burns: an overview with consideration of the pineal gland, 275
A response to trauma and infection: Metabolic changes and immunologic consequences, 188

NURSING
Need for a burn nursing core curriculum, 112

NUTRITION
Cost containment: A contribution of aggressive nutritional support in burn patients, 436
Nutritional effects on the immune response in surgical patients, 295
Nutritional regulation of the immune responses: Basic considerations and practical applications, 174

OTHER
Clinical/experimental research: Essential to burn care of the future?, 99
Early excision: A financial assessment, 442
Prediction of operating room costs, 444
Vocational interest as a predictor of tenure in a burn center, 327

PATHOPHYSIOLOGY
Alpha$_1$-antitrypsin deficiency in a burn patient, 369
Circulating fibronectin depletion in burned patients. Relationship to development of infection and prognosis value, 477
Effect of plasma exchange therapy on circulating fibronectin in burned patients, 239
The pathophysiology of severe thermal injury, 129
Thromboxane inhibitors for the prevention of progressive dermal ischemia due to the thermal injury, 466

PEDIATRICS
Evaluation of pediatric pain medications, 105
Infant and/or toddler stimulation program for pediatric burn patients, 335
Obstructive sleep apnea: A complication of burns to the head and neck in children, 353
The papoose: Device for positioning the burned child's axilla, 62
Reconstruction of the burned ear in the pediatric patient, 428
A return-to-school program for the burned child, 108

PHARMACOLOGY
Evaluation of pediatric pain medications, 105
In vitro susceptibility-resistance patterns of bacterial isolates from burn patients to augmentin and timentin, 331

PLASTIC/RECONSTRUCTIVE SURGERY
Reconstruction of the burned ear in the pediatric patient, 428

PREVENTION
A successful burn prevention program in elementary schools, 509

PSYCHOSOCIAL ASPECTS
Burn sexuality questionnaire, 425
A return-to-school program for the burned child, 108
Stress and the human immune response: A critical review, 167

REHABILITATION
Burn patient cooperation in physical and occupational therapy, 246
Burn therapy: State of the art, 64
Case report of burn injury rehabilitation: Hand dyskinesia and finger pain treatment by orthokinetic orthoses, 495
Physical therapy and occupational therapy burn unit protocol—its benefits and uses, 506
Restoration of normal function involving herniated quadriceps muscles following electric burn, 347
A self-instructional package: Neck conformer, 124

RESPIRATORY INJURY
The effect of lipid infusion on pulmonary function in burn patients with inhalation injury, 222
Pulmonary edema and compliance changes following smoke inhalation, 490

REVIEW ARTICLE
Glucose metabolism in burn injury, 408
Management of head and neck burns, 20

SECONDARY COMPLICATIONS
Abdominal aortic occlusion following electric injury, 226
Heterotopic calcification and ossification in the burn patient, 363
Obstructive sleep apnea: A complication of burns to the head and neck in children, 353
Perforation of the transverse colon in a patient with a major thermal injury, 243
Streptokinase treatment of acute arterial occlusions in burn patients, 102

SEVERITY, MORBIDITY, MORTALITY
Electric burn assessment: Use of creatine kinase fractionation, 236
Influence of hydrotherapy and antiseptic agents on burn wound bacterial contamination, 230
